INTERPRETATIONS OF COVENANT ARE ACCEPTABLE IF APART FROM FORMAL RATIFICATION OF TREATY

Open Session With Senate Foreign Relations Committee Held Today—President Requests Speedy Action to Help Stabilize All American Industry—Article 10 Not Dangerous to Monroe Pact.

Washington, Aug. 19.—In a conference at the white house today unprecedented in American history, President Wilson discussed the peace treaty with the senate foreign relations committee, answered questions put by senators, and gave out a stenographic transcript of the proceedings to the public.

Some of the inside details of the peace conference, how the league of nations covenant was drawn, and other historic happenings were handed out verbatim for the world to read, in contrast to the time honored procedure of secrecy, presidential and senatorial "confidence."

Second in American History
Nothing approaching the conference in that respect is recalled since George Washington went to the senate to discuss troubles with the Indians.

Making a plea for ratification of the treaty that the world be turned wholly back to a peace basis the president and he saw no reasonable objection to the senate expressing its interpretation of the league of nations covenant so long as those interpretations did not actually become part of the act of ratification.

FAVORS INTERPRETATIONS
By Associated Press Leased Wire
Washington, Aug. 19.—President Wilson told the foreign relations committee at the outset of his conference today that he could see no "reasonable objection" to interpretations of how the United States accepts the league of nations provided such interpretations did not form a part of the formal ratification itself.

If interpretations were part of the formal ratification, the president contended, long delays would follow as other governments would have to "accept in effect the language of the senate as the language of the treaty before ratification would be complete." Most of the interpretations, the president said, seemed to him, to suggest the "plain meaning of the instrument itself."

No Doubt About Article Ten
The much discussed article ten the president told the senators was not of doubtful interpretation when read in connection with the whole covenant. The council, he said, could only "advise" and as its action must be unanimous, the affirmative vote of the United States would be necessary for any question affecting it.

T. S. Decides Obligation
Article sixteen, the president said, provided that where there is a dispute found to be solely within the jurisdiction of one of the parties, under international law, the league council shall so report and make no recommendation for its settlement. Immigration, tariffs and the like, the president said, clearly came under that provision.

The president told the committee the league council would have "nothing whatever" to do with deciding whether the United States had fulfilled its obligations in case of withdrawal from the league.

The president said the United States would have "complete freedom of choice as to the application of force" in carrying out article 10 of the league covenant.

Discussing article 11 under which the league could take any action "deemed appropriate" in case war occurred or was threatened the president said the action contemplated also would rest entirely upon a moral obligation.

Replying to Senator Fall, who suggested that Germany was not a member of the league of nations amended, the president said the league covenant would not be submitted to her, and she would not have to give her consent, the president said.

"I will admit that that point had not occurred to me. No, she would not."

The plan for the league finally submitted in Paris, the president said had been built up first from a plan drawn by a British committee headed by a Mr. Phillimore and later included ideas from these and other discussions coupled with the president's own ideas, the league plan was made. "That is the full story of how the plan I sent to the com-

WILSON'S STATEMENT ON TREATY-LEAGUE

By Associated Press Leased Wire
Washington, Aug. 19.—President Wilson began his conference with the senate foreign relations committee at the white house today with an opening statement on the peace treaty and the league of nations. He said:

Mr. Chairman:

I am sincerely glad that the committee should have responded in this way to my intimation that I would like to be of service to it. I welcome the opportunity for a frank and full interchange of views.

I hope too, that this conference will serve to expedite your consideration of the treaty of peace. I beg that you will pardon and indulge me if I again urge that practically the whole task of bringing the country back to normal conditions of life and industry waits upon decision of the senate with regard to the terms of the peace.

Urges Early Action
I venture thus again to urge my advice that the action of the senate with regard to the treaty be taken at the earliest practicable moment because the problems with which we are face to face in the readjustment of our national life are of the most pressing and critical character, will require for their proper solution the most intimate and disinterested cooperation of all parties and all interests, and cannot be postponed without manifest peril to our people and to all the national advantages we hold most dear. May I mention a few of the matters which cannot be handled with intelligence until the country knows the character of the peace it is to have? I do so only by a very few examples.

POCKET FLASK ILLEGAL, ATTY. GENERAL HOLDS

Opinion Rendered By Asst. Dixon to Lee Co. Officials.

When the Lee county court convenes for the September term, the first Monday in September, it is quite likely that some cases under the recently enacted search and seizure law will be brought in for trial. The state's attorney's office has on file a number of cases that have been investigated and have been held up awaiting an opinion and explanation of certain paragraphs in the measure from the office of Attorney General Brundage.

In these cases no action has been taken and it is quite likely that those suspected will not know of their position until the time for the September term of the county court to convene. The opinions as requested from the attorney general's office by State's Attorney Harry Edwards, were received here late Saturday and were prepared by Assistant Attorney General George C. Dixon of this city. The case is one of the first to be reviewed by Attorney Dixon and his explanation of the meaning and wording of the law is given in the following communication to State's Attorney Edwards:

Hon. Harry Edwards:
State's Attorney,
Dixon, Illinois.

Dear Sir:

I have your letter of the 6th inst. in which you ask for my opinion on the question of the right of a person to transport intoxicating liquor along a public highway.

By section 1 of the act, known as the Search and Seizure law, "highway" is defined to mean:

"Any watercourse, lake, aerial way, railroad, road, alley, path or way which is open to the use of the public."

Section 3 of the act referred to forbids any person to:

"Transport upon any highway, cause to be transported upon any highway," any intoxicating liquor. This section provides, however, that:

"Nothing in this act shall be construed to forbid the transportation in bond, of intoxicating liquor for medicinal, sacramental, chemical, mechanical (Continued on Page Six.)"

Two Large Battleships Destroyed—English Loss is Small.

By Associated Press Leased Wire
Helsingfors, Monday, Aug. 18.—(Delayed)—The bolshevik battleship Andreeva Pervosveta, the battle cruiser Petropavlovsk, a transport and a guard ship are reported to have been sunk during an engagement with the British fleet in the gulf of Finland on Sunday. The British are said to have lost three motor boats and to have had eight officers and three men killed.

The Andre Pervosveta was reported as probably sunk by a torpedo near Kronstadt on June 15. At the same time it was said the Petropavlovsk had hoisted the white flag.

The Pervosveta was 454 feet long, carried normally a crew of 933 men and was armed with four 12 inch guns, fourteen 8 inch guns, twelve 4 inch guns, and a heavy minor battery. She was built in 1907.

The Petropavlovsk was 590 feet long with a displacement of 23,370 tons. She carried twelve 12 inch guns and the usual batteries of smaller weapons.

Oil Steamer Blaze Destroys Merchandise

By Associated Press Leased Wire
Havre, France, Monday, Aug. 18.—(Delayed)—Fire which badly damaged the American tank steamer George G. Henry and destroyed merchandise on the docks valued at 500,000 francs today, was caused by oil from the tanker catching fire when an unloading pipe broke. The burning oil flooded the pier to which the steamer was moored.

FLYERS THOUGHT THEY FELL NEAR VALENTINE, TEX.

Discover Their Error Too Late to Escape From Rebel Chief.

By Associated Press Leased Wire
Marfa, Tex., Aug. 19.—Completely confused in their directions, Lieut. H. G. Peterson and Lieut. Paul H. Davis, American army aviators, released early today by payment of ransom to bandits who held them, believed they were on the American side of the border from the time their plane fell until their release. Captain Matlack, who paid the ransom to the bandits, finally was able to convince them they were in Mexico and had been following the Conchos river, thinking that stream was the Rio Grande. The aviators thought they were within five miles of Valentine, Tex.

Lieut. Peterson, first to cross the border from Mexico, today made the following statement:

"We fell about noon Sunday. We thought we were about two miles from Candalaria. We walked all Sunday afternoon and Sunday night until about 2:30 o'clock Monday morning, when we came to a Mexican ranch where we found a Mexican who talked English. He told us Pilares was three miles south. We asked him to take us there, but he told us the Mexicans would kill us if we went there. So we got him to take us to a road down which we walked about an hour.

"We slept about one and one-half hours until 6 o'clock Monday morning, when we headed down what we thought was the Rio Grande. We walked until 10:30 p. m., then we slept until 6 a. m. Tuesday.

"Tuesday we walked until 9:30 a. m. when we took to the river and swam for five hours downstream, taking ten minutes rest four different times.

"We landed, dried our clothes and started over the mountains.

"I had a little fever. We laid down on a mountain path and slept until 6 a. m. Wednesday. We saw smoke from a village and headed in that direction. We thought the village was just around the corner from Candalaria.

"At the village we hired a Mexican with three burros to take us to Candalaria.

"We began our journey on burros with our Mexican guide. We soon were overtaken by six armed bandits and many townspeople. All but two of the bandits left us, but these two continued following us. After going about forty-five minutes the bandits stopped us and told the Mexican owner of the burros to return to his home. The Mexican objected, as we were riding his burros. The bandits then headed up the valley to a village.

"I gave the one-armed bandit two dollars and he arranged for food for us and liquor for himself. The bandits took us on to a ranch where they got a horse and a mule for us to ride. This was about 7 p. m. Wednesday. We rode until midnight. Then we slept until 7:30 o'clock Thursday morning. Resuming our journey we continued in the mountains all day Thursday and slept in the mountains at night.

"Friday afternoon about 6:30, the bandits stopped the horses and said they wanted to have a little chat with us. The bandits told us to write the messages saying ransom must be paid for our release. He spoke English very well. He had worked on the railroads in Kansas and had lost an arm and a leg in an accident, he said.

"We stayed over night in the mountains Saturday night, when the leader returned from sending the messages. The bandits foraged for food and we had plenty to eat. The leader left Sunday night and returned Monday morning. He said the money for our release would be paid.

"We left there at noon Monday and then camped until 9 o'clock Monday night when we started to meet Captain Matlack. We met him at approximately 1:15 a. m. today. After bringing me over the border he returned for Lieut. Davis.

"We left there at noon Monday and plenty of food."

Lieut. Davis' story differed from that of Lieut. Peterson only in a few minor details. Lieut. Davis added the fact that the plane fell near a bridge over the river. The place afterwards was located near Falomir, Chihuahua.

State's Attorney Has No Notice of Meeting

State's Attorney Edwards announced this morning that he had received no notice of any kind from any of the officials of the office of District Attorney Clyne regarding a meeting of the prosecuting attorneys and food administrators of northwestern Illinois counties in Freeport tomorrow to consider measures to be taken in the government's fight against H. C. L., but he stated that should he receive any notice he will surely attend the meeting. Dispatches from Chicago yesterday were to the effect that the District Attorney had called the conference to make plans, perhaps, for proceedings against profiteers.

ROSE GOES HOME CHAPTER I

The next morning Everett was coldly, almost frostily polite to Rose. I wished I hadn't told him what she said—it was going to make it horribly uncomfortable for me. But I needn't have worried. Rose wasn't the kind to stay where she wasn't sure of a good time, and as soon as Everett had left for his office she commenced to pack.

"I wish you would call Barry up and tell him I am going home," she said. "All right! But I don't see how you can call him 'Barry.' I have known him ever so much longer than you have and I have called him Barrett only a few times. It seems awfully intimate to give him a nick-name."

"Not if you knew," I wondered what she meant, but could get her to make no explanation. Finally I concluded she was just 'putting on side' as an English friend of mother's used to express it. So I called Barrett up and told him. He only said: "I am sorry your friend is going, isn't it rather sudden?" She said nothing about it last night.

"It is sudden. Here she is," and I relinquished the telephone to Rose, who talked a good quarter of an hour I am sure.

"He will be at the train," she said, when she finally hung up. "You will go down with me, of course."

"Certainly!" I knew by her tone she didn't want me, but neither did I want her to tell Barrett Edmunds how Everett had treated me. I was sure she would if I were not along. "I will order the car as long as you are determined to go."

"I wouldn't be hired to stay! I would feel so uncomfortable. I don't see how you stand it, honest I don't I'm real sorry for you, Sandra."

That was the last straw. "Please, Rose, don't go back home telling tales, saying you are sorry for me and all that sort of thing. It will make Mother terribly unhappy, and make her think I am. I am not really Rose. Everett is awfully nice at times, and—"

"He'd have to be to make up for the other times. The idea of taking a man's warm-over affections, and then standing what you do! Nix on the widowers and old men for little bright-eyes. Love in a cottage for me in preference."

I felt awfully like agreeing with her, and to keep from doing it I made myself think of all the nice things Everett had done for me. I made myself think of all the nice things Everett had done for me. I tried to tell her of some of them but she wouldn't listen—just poorhood every one of them.

I teased her all the way to the station to promise me she would not worry mother by telling her how she felt about Everett. But she wouldn't promise. Said she thought it her duty perhaps to let my family know the sort of a crank I had married.

Barrett was at the station waiting. When he asked Rose if she wasn't leaving rather suddenly, I broke right in very impolitely and changed the subject. But Rose wasn't to be put off so easily.

"It isn't comfortable for me to stay now that Mr. Graham is back. He won't allow Sandra any freedom, and I couldn't live like that, even as a guest."

He gave me a quick sharp look of sympathy, then he too changed the subject, and talked so rapidly, and with such humor that Rose had no time nor, I am sure, any inclination to recur to it. But she took all his pleasantries to herself, shutting me out entirely. I didn't care—much, if only she would not say anything more about my husband. But I wasn't to get off so easily. Just as we were about to leave her, she said:

"You must be nice to Sandra, Mr. Edmonds. Poor girl! I should die if I had to lead the life she does. Be forbidden to go out, told to go to bed even when he is away. I'll bet his first wife wasn't such a saint."

I felt so ashamed I wished that I could run and hide somewhere. But after she left Barrett turned to me as if nothing had happened and said:

"May I bring my music some afternoon next week?"

"Do! I shall be glad to have you."

Then I bade him goodbye and went home.

That afternoon I cried for hours. I knew Everett would scold, but somehow I didn't care. I knew I was a sight with my red nose and swollen eyes, but I did nothing to render them less noticeable before I joined him at dinner. Tomorrow—Sandra Tells Everett a Few Truths

BIG EXPORTS MAKE FOR HIGHER PRICES.

One of the factors behind high prices
is the exportation of American commodities in increasing quantities. A New York banker appropriately describes Europe as a "vacuum" sucking in American goods. European nations are bidding, almost regardless of price,
for our food, cotton, clothing and leather.

Last April American goods were exported to the amount of over $700,000, 000, breaking the record. In June the amount rose to $918,000,000. It is said to have been greater still in July, and to be still increasing.

In June, 1918, the country exported $54,000,000 worth of breadstuffs. In June of 1919, that figure was more than doubled. There was a similar doubling of the meat and dairy exports, the cotton exports and leather exports. Eastern warehouses are bulging with additional products intended for shipment.

It is clear that Europe is ready to absorb all the goods the American exporters send, at prices higher, if necessary, than those now paid by consumers in this country.

It is largely this foreign market that sets the price levels for standard commodities here at home.

Is it likely that any considerable reduction can be made in the price of foodstuffs, clothing and shoes unless there is a limit placed on exportation?
And is the American government, or American business, or the American public, prepared to take any such drastic step?

WASTE LAND, STARVING CATTLE.

Thousands of cattle and sheep will die of starvation during the coming winter unless some practical relief measure is carried out. Montana, North Dakota and Idaho for the last two and in some cases three years have had such unusual periods of drought that there is a serious shortage of fodder
and of grass upon the grazing ranges.

This is not purely a cattleman's problem, as might seem at first thought. It concerns the entire country, since it strikes at the heart of the food supply.
In some districts fifty percent of the cattle and sheep will have to be removed to better grazing ground if they are not to be lost.

At a conference held in St. Paul, farmers and stockmen from Michigan, Wisconsin and Minnesota reported that their states could offer extensive territory for the relief of the distressed ranchers further west. The government may give its aid should it be decided to transfer the cattle. The government is spending much money for less worthy causes.

Captain Matlack thought $7,500 was enough for the Mexican bandits. But Captain, everything else is going up and what's a poor bandit going to do,
with his children crying for gingerbread?

Mexico has built up quite an industry—catching Americans and selling them back. The government might turn its profiteering investigating machinery in that direction, also.

Dixon township should not let another season go by without oiling the highway leading to Lowell Park. It is one of the most popular roads in this vicinity, and one of the dustiest.

The question before the country now is whether the packing business is an enterprise or a pig.

We don't want government of the profiteers, for the profiteers and by the profiteers. It makes life too uncertain for those of us who have to eat.

Men used to get drunk and get sick.
Now, all they can do with these new drinks is get sick.

Now comes the suggestion that we attack the Irish republic to Rhode Island and make a regular state out of it.

INTERPRETATIONS ARE ACCEPTABLE

matic terms of the covenant, the president said, but not a legal obligation to make war no matter how strong the moral one.

Could Choose Form of Force.
"We would have complete choice as to application force," said the president in answer to a further question.

The action contemplated as "deemed appropriate" in case of war or threatened war was also, the president contended, a moral one.

Lodge Makes Reply
After the president had delivered his statement, Senator Lodge said:

"So far as I am personally concerned
—and I think I represent perhaps the majority of the committee in that respect—we have no thought of entering upon arguments as to interpretations or points of that character; but the committee was very desirous of getting information on certain points which seem not clear and on which they thought information would be of value
to have in consideration of the treaty which they, I think I may say for myself and others, desire to hasten in every possible way.

How About Other Treaties
Your reference to the necessity of action leads me to ask one question. If we have to restore peace to the world
it is necessary, I assume, that there should be treaties with Austria, Hungary, Turkey and Bulgaria. Those treaties are all more or less connected with the treaty with Germany. The questions I should like to ask is what the prospects are of receiving those treaties for action?

Await German Settlement
The president: I think it is very good, sir, and so far as I can judge from the contents of the dispatches from my colleagues on the other side of the water, the chief delay is duling the uncertainty as to what is going to happen to this treaty. This treaty is a model of the others. I saw enough of the others before I left Paris to know that they are being framed on the same set principles and the treaty with Germany is the model. I think that is the chief element of delay, sir.

Senator Lodge: They are not regarded as essential to the consideration of this treaty?

The president: They are not regarded as such, sir, they follow this treaty.
British Treaty Completed
Senator Lodge: I do not know about the other treaties, but the treaty with Poland, for example, has been completed?

The president: Yes and signed but it is dependent upon this treaty. My thought was to submit it upon the action on this treaty.

Senator Lodge then asked whether
the president could show the committee
the tentative league of nations drafts submitted by Great Britain, France and Italy.

Cannot Show League Drafts
The president: I would have sent them to the committee with pleasure,
senator, if I had found that I had them.
I took it for granted that I had them;
but the papers that remain in my hands remain there in haphazard way.
I can tell you the character of the other drafts. The British draft was the only one as I remember that was in the form of a definite constitution of a league.
The French and Italian drafts were in the form of a series of propositions laying down general rules and assuming that the commission, or whatever body made the final formulations would build upon those principles if they were adopted. They were principles quite consistent with the final action.

I remember saying to the committee
when I was here in March—I have forgotten the expression I used, but it was something to the effect that the British draft had constituted the basis. I thought afterward that that was misleading and I am very glad to tell the committee just what I meant.

First Was Redraft
Some months before the conference assembled a plan for the league of nations had been drawn up by a British committee at the head of which was Mr. Phillimore. I believe the Mr. Philli-more who was known as the authority on international law. A copy of that document was sent to me and I built upon that a redraft. Then, between that time and the time of the formation of the commission on the league of nations, I had the advantage of seeing a paper by General Smuts of South Africa, who seemed to me to have done some very clear thinking particularly with regard to what was to be done with the pieces of the dismembered empire.
Before I got to Paris, therefore, I re-
wrote the document to which I have alluded and you may have noticed that it consists of a series of articles and then supplementary agreements. It was in the supplementary agreements that I embodied the additional ideas that had come to me not only from General Smuts' paper, but from other discussions. That is the full story of how the plan which was sent to committee was built up.

Smuts' Plan Prominent
Senator Lodge: Then it is obvious that the General Smuts' plan was used.
That appears on the face of the document.

The president: Yes.
Senator Lodge: Then there was a previous draft in addition to the one you have sent to us. You spoke of a redraft. That was not submitted to the committee.

The president: No; that was privately, my own.

Senator Lodge: Was it before our commission?

The president: No, it was not before your commission.

Senator Lodge then asked whether the United States would receive any part of the German reparations plan.

The president: I left that question open, senator, because I did not feel that I had any final right to decide it.
Upon the basis that was set up in the reparations clauses the portion that the United States would receive would be very small at best, and my own judgment was frequently expressed, not as a decision, but as a judgment that we should claim nothing under those general clauses. I did that because I coveted the moral advantage that that would give us in the councils of the world.

MAYOR NAILS LIE IN PUBLISHED STORY IN CHICAGO PAPER TODAY

Says It Shows "Malicious Mind of Base Circulators."

Mayor Mark D. Smith this afternoon issued the following statement concerning an article which appeared in this morning's Chicago Tribune to the effect that he had attempted to prevent the unloading of the Heth Shows here Sunday:

"An article bearing Dixon date line
and purporting to be news, stating that I had made an effort to prevent a carnival company unloading in the C. & N. W. Ry. yards, and also that I had refused permission to the band of said company to appear on the streets of Dixon, is a dream, or in other words
more uncharitable, an utter falsehood.

"I was not on the south side of Rock river on last Sunday, I had no conversation with any member of the carnival company nor with anyone representing the C. & N. W. Ry. A representative of the carnival company came to see me on Wednesday or Thursday of last week and endeavored to get my consent to exhibit in Dixon. I refused in this case, as in three other instances since my election to the office of mayor.

"He then asked what my attitude
would be if his company exhibited outside the municipal boundaries. I told him my jurisdiction did not extend outside the limits of the city, but would rather of course, that they did not come
at all.

"I had no further conversation with him concerning his organization until Monday, Aug. 18, on which date he asked permission for their band to appear within the city. I gave my consent to this request, as in my judgment music is elevating as well as entertaining. I am opposed to exhibitions of this nature, and until evidence other than has been presented, comes to me I expect to take the same stand regarding them

as in the past.

"The circulation of the absolutely false reports regarding my meddling in affairs not within my official duties but,
reflects the unreliable as well as malicious trend of mind of the originators of these base and sensational canards.

"This has not been written with the expectation of in any way gaining me friendship or good will of those responsible for the above mentioned stories.
My desire is that right-thinking, fair-minded citizens may know the truth and that they may know that when I believe I am right I stand ready to carry out my convictions, as your mayor.
A desire to be fair at all times and to do my duty as I see it is my only excuse for having sought the office I hold.

"I might also state that it behooves
those who attend the carnival to look well to their property. Spare auto tires and accessories were stolen from cars parked in the vicinity of the shows last night.

"Respectfully,
"MARK D. SMITH."

Kent Denies Story, Too.

Referring to the article mentioned Attorney W. G. Kent, dictator of the Dixon Lodge of Moose, under whose auspices the carnival is showing in Dixon, stated to The Telegraph that the story is absolutely false, that there was absolutely no trouble with the mayor and that he was present at the unloading of the shows all day Sunday and did not see the mayor on the grounds
at all.

ADDED ATTRACTIONS, SPECIAL TRAIN, FOR AMBOY FAIR NEXT WEEK

Greatest Week in History of Amboy is Present Indication.

The management of the Lee County Fair yesterday received assurance that a special train would be run on the Burlington on Thursday of next week, which will be known as County Day. This is expected to greatly accommodate people from the south and east part of the county.

The special train will leave Shabbona at 9 o'clock on the morning of Thursday, August 28, and following schedule being carried out:

Lv. Shabbona 9:00 a. m.
Lv. Paw Paw 9:15 a. m.
Lv. Compton 9:27 a. m.
Lv. West Brooklyn 9:34
Lv. Shaw's 9:45 a. m.
Ar. Amboy 9:55 a. m.

Returning.
Lv. Amboy 5:30 p. m.
Ar. Shabbona 6:25 p. m.

Final arrangements for the tenth annual fair are rapidly taking form. Ten head of fancy racing stock were working out on the track this morning with many more to come before the close of the week. There is every indication that there will be an exceptionally large field of horses entered in this year's events. The fair management are considering the offer of a special purse of $100 which will be given to the horse breaking the present track record of 2:10 1/4 which was made by Exall of the Hoyle stables at Dixon three years ago.

An additional amusement that is classed as a headliner in the fair string this year has been assured for the week. Secretary William Leech made a trip to Janesville, Wis., where he was successful in securing Newell's Monkey Speedway, an attraction that is very much in demand this season. The Newell company will arrive in Amboy the latter part of the week. Some of the other attractions are beginning to arrive and are selecting locations on the grounds.

Word has also been received of an exceptional and unexpected exhibit of pure bred stock from Governor Frank O. Lowden's Illinois farm. A herd of pure bred Holstein cattle and an exhibit of pure bred Poland China hogs from the governor's farm will be shown.

Mrs. Caroline Bull Died Monday Morning

Mrs. Caroline L. Bull, one of the oldest residents of Amboy, passed away at the home of her son, John Bull of this place yesterday afternoon at about 1:30. Death resulted from a stroke of paralysis which she suffered less than three hours before the time of her death. Mrs. Bull was 88 years of age, and had been a resident of Amboy for almost a half century.

Her husband, Daniel Bull, passed away in 1887 and since his death she has made her home with her son. Daniel Bull will be remembered by some of the pioneer residents of Amboy as an expert cabinet maker who was in the employ of the late Calvin D. Vaughan for a period of more than 20 years.

Mrs. Bull leaves to mourn her sudden taking, four sons and two daughters as follows: DeWitt Bull of St. Paul; Oscar and Jesse, of Freeport; John, of Amboy; Hettie, of Zephyr Springs, Fla., and Mrs. Jennie Horton, of Lyndon, Iowa. The funeral will be held at the Congregational church at 10 o'clock Thursday morning. Rev. Lee officiating and with burial at Prairie Rest.

DIXON MAYOR HERE.

Mayor Mark D. Smith, of Dixon, motored to Amboy this morning and spent a few hours in the transaction of business.

Auto Racer Takes to Air as a Diversion

Chicago, Aug. 19.—H. Clifford Durant, winner of the Pacific coast auto race championship last year, is in Chicago today, having come from Los Angeles, to compete in the Elgin road race on Saturday for the national championship. Seeking other diversions than speeding around an automobile track at 100 miles an hour, Durant was negotiating for a Milwaukee airplane to whisk him to Elgin—nominal cost $5,000.

"I'm a pilot licensed by the Aero Club of America," Durant said. "I've never flown over a large city, but I guess it can be done."

Boy Suffered Broken Leg Jumping Off Car

(Special to The Telegraph)
Sterling, Ill., Aug. 19.—The 10-year-old nephew of Motorman Will Aument of one of the city cars of the S. D. & E. in operation in this city, suffered a broken leg when he jumped off his uncle's car on West Fourth street, directly in the path of one of the Horn & Morath delivery trucks. The boy had jumped on the rear fender of the car as it started from the west end terminal and his uncle did not know he was there until after the accident.

ENTERS MEXICO AFTER AVIATORS WERE RELEASED

tain Matlack, of the Eighth Cavalry, who took the ransom money across the border, paid half the money for the release of Lieut. Peterson and when Lieut. Davis was delivered to him he galloped away with the lieutenant without making the final payment.

The aviators wandered from Sunday afternoon until Wednesday along the Conchos river near Palomir, Chihuahua, under the impression they were on the Rio Grande. This impression was not corrected until after their return to the border today.

"Had a great experience," was Peterson's message to his father.

Made Attempt To Escape.

One attempt was made to escape by the aviators. They were threatened with death if they tried again. Jesus Renteria and a band of five Mexicans accomplished their capture. There were twenty bandits at the ranch where they were held.

By a pre-arranged plan, Captain Matlack awaited a fire signal from the Mexicans which came after midnight and then crossed the border with the ransom money. Lieut. Peterson crossed the border to the American side at 1:15 a. m. and Captain Matlack brought back Lieut. Davis at 2 o'clock.

Captain Matlack said the two aviators landed in Mexico, contradicting the story of Lieut. Peterson. He said the men thought they had landed in the United States and this impression on their part was not corrected until after they had reached the border early this morning.

Airplane Was Wrecked.

The officers, the captain said, had become confused while in the air and had mistaken the Conchos river for the Rio Grande. Instead of landing near Candelaria, as they thought they had landed at a point near Palomir, Chihuahua, more than 40 miles up the Conchos river where they abandoned their wrecked airplane after stripping it of machine guns and vital parts which might make it of use to the Mexicans.

Thinking they were on the Rio Grande, they started down stream in an effort to locate Candelaria and report their accident to military headquarters. They landed at 12:30 Sunday afternoon and were picked up Wednesday morning by Jesus Renteria and a band of five other Mexicans. They were taken into the mountains, but thought they were approaching Valentine, Tex. They were told that 60 men belonged to the band while in reality the aviators saw only twenty men at the ranch where they were held.

Captain Matlack said the bandits were well mounted. The Americans tried once to escape but were threatened with death and did not renew their attempt.

How Captain's Ruse Worked.

Various plans for obtaining the ransom money were discussed by the bandits. One was for the delivery of the money and Americans in the middle of the Rio Grande. Another was for the aviators to be taken 100 yards up river and the money taken an equal distance down river and both left at the same time. Finally it was agreed that an American army officer should be sent from the American side upon signals from the bandits by means of flares. At the same time Renteria was to start from the Mexican side with the Americans. They were to meet and exchange prisoners and money.

Captain Matlack's ruse by which he saved $7,500 was contrived on the spur of the moment after he had got Peterson across the border.

"I just decided there was no use in paying those Mexicans that other $7,500 after I had Davis, so I told him to jump on behind on my horse. I spurred him hard and we made a wild dash for the border and made it. They called for us to halt, but I said 'go to H—' and crossed."

PARENTS OVERJOYED.

By Associated Press Leased Wire
Hutchinson, Minn., Aug. 19.—Samuel G. Peterson, father of Lieut. H. G. Peterson was overjoyed when the Associated Press bulletin announcing the safe return of his son across the border to the American side was read to him.

"I consider that the army acted promptly and did everything in their power to help us. My wife and myself and two daughters will get our first rest in forty hours now," he said.

Secretary of War Baker and Senator Nelson promptly answered my request for action in the matter.

"Certainly now that the Mexican rebels have captured and held for ransom officers of the United States army, the government cannot let bandits' acts pass unnoticed, as has apparently been the case in the past."

THE THREE GENIES OF THE HAND GRENADE

Written for the United States School Garden Army
Department of Interior, Bureau of Education.

PART II.

Tommy decided that the voices came from the hand grenade. "Let me out!" It cracked and spluttered. "I have work to do! There is evil in the world. I belong to the Forces of Destruction, but I am against evil and for good. I am Death! I am Life! Let me out. I am the Genie of the Hand Grenade! Pull the pin and let me out!"

Tommy Thoughtful, as if moved by some powerful force, jumped out of bed ran to the table, and pulled the pin of the hand-grenade. Then, with a splitting crash, the hand-grenade was burst violently apart, and the great Genie rushed out. How Tommy could see so great and terrible a creature, he didn't know, but he DID somehow see the Genie of the Hand-Grenade.

The Genie's face was black, yet shining, with a terrible sort of beauty. It was angry and awful, yet it had a sort of fierce goodness all mixed up with anger, and even sadness! Robes of flame swirled about him, leaping in twisting, swirling flame patterns of changing lights, white, red, blue, green. He seemed to grow until the whole room was filled with his fiery presence. The walls split apart with a loud crash. Something struck Tommy Thoughtful with terrible force. He didn't know where he was hit, nor where he was, but he, too, seemed to pass out of the room with the rushing Genie.

And the Genie seemed to join with an army of other genies that rushed and swirled in robes of fire through leagues of air, chasing before them a strange black SOMETHING that had no form, but only a feeling of hate and horror.

It all happened so quickly that Tommy couldn't tell how it was exactly, but the Genies caught up with this great horrible, black THING that seemed like a terrible storm cloud without form-yet was also solid and hard to pierce as iron. With terrific force they rushed upon it, split it into a billion-billion pieces, and blew it apart like dust.

Then there burst upon the world LIGHT—great and wonderful LIGHT, through which came a white-robed Angel-like figure with a green branch in her hand, and with rainbows playing around her hair. Tommy thought her name must be Peace.

Tommy blinked and opened his eyes to the broad, bright shaft of sunlight pouring through the windows, in which radiance stood Mother in her white morning dress, with the sunlight making rainbows in her red-gold hair.

Tommy didn't say anything about this wonderful dream, for he remembered his Mondamin Dream, and he hoped the Genie would come again the next night. Tommy knew that if you talk too much and too soon about Genies and Dreams and things like that you'll frighten them away. But he went to sleep the next night with an excited feeling that something was going to happen.

and manufacturing purposes, under such restrictions and regulations as are now or may hereafter be provided by the laws of the United States or of this state.

And the same provided further that the act shall not be construed

"To forbid any consignee from transporting his vessel or package of intoxicating liquor from the nearest place of delivery to the nearest carrier to the place where such liquor is to be used, nor to forbid any person to whom any druggist of the county has lawfully delivered any bottle or vessel of intoxicating liquor from transporting such liquor to the place where it is to be used in such county."

I also call attention to section 13 of the act which provides that:

"The sheriff of the county may, in his discretion, grant a written permit to remove such liquor to another designated place."

Referring to liquor which is lawful by being received from any carrier or druggist.

The transportation by common carrier, as used in the above sections, refers only to transporting liquor from the manufacturer to the wholesale druggists, the wholesale druggist to the retail druggists, and such other acts of transportation as the law authorizes.

By your letter you ask me whether or not the phrase, "transport by any means whatsoever," would prohibit an individual from carrying intoxicating liquor on his person in a bottle or other container, or in a grip, suit case or other receptacle, or in a buggy, automobile or other conveyance for his private use along the public highway or street.

It is my opinion that, with the exceptions mentioned in the act known as the Search and Seizure law, it is unlawful to transport intoxicating liquor upon any highway in this state.

Very truly yours,

Edward J. Brundage

Attorney General.

Oldest Private Bank Gets State Charter

The following from a recent issue of the Chicago Daily News will be of interest to many Dixon people, in that Harry Breneisa, one of the principals in the story is well known here:

The private bank conducted by A. W. Jefferis & Co., in the Monadnock block, established twenty years ago, and said by its officials to be the oldest and largest private banking institution now doing business in Chicago, will be succeeded by the Jefferis State bank next Monday. CORN DROPS AS SELLING ORDERS FOLLOW UPTURN

By Associated Press Leased Wire Chicago, Aug. 19.—The corn market started out strongly today on commission house buying which found only limited offerings available. Resting orders to sell checked the upturn and figures sloped off to below yesterday's close for the distant months, September keeping relatively stronger. With increased demand in the pit on the break, prices advanced from the low level with moderately active trading. Opening prices ranged from 1/4 to 2c higher, with Sept. 1.78 1/2 to 1.79, Dec. 1.41 to 1.42 and May 1.37 to 1.37 1/2. On the decline May touched 1.35 but worked back to about opening figures.

Oats followed the course of corn but within narrower limits. After opening unchanged to 1/2c higher with Sept. at 72 1/2 to 72 3/4 the market sagged somewhat and then ascended to about yesterday's finish.

Provisions dipped at the opening, lard being 20c to 30c lower. Short covering brought about a rally which was followed by another sag.

Later persistent buying lifted the market considerable above the low levels. Scanty offerings contributed to the strength which was evident all along the line with Sept. leading. The market closed strong 3 1/2 to 5 1/2c net higher, with Sept. 1.83 to 1.83 1/2 and Dec. 1.44 1/2 to 1.45.
